Some Account of Captain Glas, who was murdered by Ruffians, on board the Brig Earl of Sandwich.

CAPTAIN Glas was a Native of Scotland, and bred a Surgeon; in that Capacity he made ſome Voyages to the Coaſts of Guinea, and was at length Maſter of a Guinea Ship, in which Station he continued till the late War began. Having ſaved a good Sum of Money in Trade, he ventured Part of it on board a Privateer, and went himſelf as Captain. He was not three Days at Sea before the Ship's Crew mutinied; but at length by fair Speeches were pacified; and ſtill more ſo by the Capture of a French Merchantman of great Value, which followed immediately. This good Fortune was ſoon diſpelled by the Appearance of an Enemy's Frigate about twice his Strength, with which however he engaged. The Conteſt was very warm for more than two Hours, but another French ſhip appearing, Capt. Glas was obliged to ſtrike, with the Loſs of more than Half his Crew, and himſelf ſhot through the Shoulder. He remained ſome Time in a French Priſon in the Weſt-Indies, and was treated with much Severity, but being at laſt exchanged, he embarked the Remainder of his Fortune upon another Adventure in the privateering Way. He was again taken Priſoner, and his whole Fortune at once deſtroyed. Upon being releaſed a ſecond Time, he was employed by the Merchants in their Service to and from the Weſt-Indies, and was taken Priſoner during the laſt War no leſs than ſeven Times. However, he had upon the Concluſion of the late Peace, amaſſed about 2000 l. and being an excellent Seaman, he reſolved in his own Ship to go upon a Diſcovery. He found out a new Harbour upon the Coaſt of Africa, between the River Senegal and Cape de Verd, to which he ſuppoſed a very great Trade might be driven. He returned to England, and laid his Diſcovery before the Miniſtry; and at length obtained an excluſive Trade to his own Harbour for 20 Years. Having prepared for his Departure, with the Aſſiſtance of one or two Merchants, he left England, and arrived at the new found Harbour. He ſent one of his Men on Shore with Propoſitions of Trade, but the Natives murdered him the Moment he landed. Capt. Glas found Means to inform the King of the Country, of the Wrong done him, and the mutual Advantages that might accrue from trading thither. The King ſeemed to be pleaſed with his Propoſal, only to get him the more ſecurely in his Power; but Glas being on his Guard, he failed in effecting his Deſign. The King's next Attempt was to poiſon the Crew, by Proviſions ſent as Preſents to the Captain, this alſo failed of Effect; but Glas, for want of Neceſſaries, was obliged to go to the Canaries in an open Boat, in order to buy ſome from the Spaniards. In the mean Time, the Savages fell upon the Ship, but they were repulſed by the Crew; and the Ship being obliged to quit the Harbour, and not finding her Captain return, ſailed for England, where ſhe arrived in Safety.

In the mean Time, the unfortunate Captain had landed upon one of the Canary Iſlands, and preſented his Petition to the Spaniſh Governor; but who, inſtead of treating him with the deſired Hoſpitality, threw him into Priſon as a Spy, and there kept him for ſome Months, without Pen, Ink, or Paper. He at length bethought himſelf of writing with a Piece of Charcoal on a Biſket, to a Captain of an Engliſh Man of War then in the Harbour, who, though with much Difficulty, and after being previouſly ſent to Priſon himſelf, at length effected the Captain's Releaſe. Here he continued for ſome Time, till his Wife and Daughter, a beautiful Girl about 11 Years old, came to him from Home, and from the Canaries they all joyfully embarked for England on board the Sandwich, Captain Cochran, Commander. Glas now ſuppoſed that all his Dangers were over, for the Ship had come within Sight of his native Country, when a Part of the Crew mutinied, and ſecretly reſolved to murder all the Reſt; which they effected; and Captain Glas, his Wife and Daughter, and Captain Cochran, and others, were all barbarouſly killed, and thrown overboard. [See a more particular Account of this Murder in No. 20, and of the Puniſhment of the Criminals in No. 25, of this Paper.]

PARIS, January 31, 1766.

The following melancholy accident lately happened at Carpentras, in the diſtrict of Avignon. An inhabitant of that place had married his daughter, and the wedding day being paſſed with the uſual merriment, the new-married couple were conducted to their apartment. The next day, at neither of them made their appearance, after waiting till it was very late, a perſon was ſent to call them, but as no body anſwered, and the window-ſhutters being open, they got a ladder, and looked in at the window, when they found the young woman dragged upon the floor, all over blood, and the huſband tearing her with his teeth, and devouring her. It is impoſſible to expreſs the horror which ſuch a ſhocking ſpectacle muſt occaſion. They immediately broke open the door, but too late to ſave the poor woman, who was found quite dead, and almoſt torn to pieces. They were at a loſs to know to what to attribute this ſhocking cataſtrophe, but the footman of the new-married man recollected that his maſter had ſome time before been bit by a mad dog, which they were convinced muſt be the cauſe of it. They thought it expedient to ſhoot the unfortunate man, which was done accordingly.

Four deſerters from the Empreſs Queen's troops being condemned to draw lots for one to be ſhot out of the four, three of them drew, but the fourth proteſted he would not, becauſe her Imperial Majeſty had prohibited all ſorts of games of chance. The execution was upon that ſuſpended; and the court being informed of the whole affair, orders were ſent to pardon them all.

The want of room for ſeveral weeks paſt, prevented the giving our Readers the following letters, and accounts of the terrible hurricane, &c. that happened at Gibraltar, on the 30th of January laſt; therefore at this time of a general dearth of news, we give it them, viz.

LONDON, March 11.

Extract of a Letter from Major-General Irwin, to Mr. Secretary Conway, dated Gibraltar, Feb. 3, 1766.

"On Thurſday morning the 30th of laſt Month, about four o'clock, it began to thunder, lighten, and rain moſt violently, and continued without intermiſſion the whole day. Sometimes moſt heavy ſhowers of hail ſucceeded the rain, the ſtones of which were of that immenſe ſize, as to break many of the windows in the town. As it grew later in the day, the ſtorm increaſed in every reſpect; ſo that, between eight and nine at night, the whole hill and town ſeemed to be on fire, and ſpouts of water poured down from the clouds. At once there came ſuch a torrent from the top of the rock, with ſuch heaps of rubbiſh and ſand, as carried along with it ſeveral houſes on the ſide of the hill; and in a few minutes the ground-floors of all the houſes in the town were full of water, the hail and rubbiſh having ſtopped up the drains. The ſuddenneſs and violence of this accident, occaſioned the loſs of ſeveral lives. By the zeal, activity, and chearfulneſs of the officers and ſoldiers, I ſoon got the drains opened, and prevented further miſchief. I muſt not, on this occaſion, omit telling you how much I am obliged to the officers, for the care and vigilance they ſhewed; as alſo the private men, for their activity and obedience in ſuch a time of univerſal confuſion and diſtreſs. The ſtorm began to abate about 11 at night, but did not go off quite till about eight o'clock on Friday morning. Almoſt every body in town has ſuffered; the merchants very conſiderably; ſome are totally ruined, the goods in their ſtores having been waſhed away. I thank God the magazines eſcaped untouched.

"I cannot ſend you the particulars of our misfortunes, but ſhall by the firſt opportunity. In the mean time I have given, and ſhall continue to give, ſuch orders as I think beſt for the ſervice. I do not as yet know the number of killed; but judge, by the beſt accounts, they may be about 60, five of which are ſoldiers. It is ſcarce poſſible to deſcribe the melancholy ſcene of parts of houſes, furniture, men, women, children, and animals of all ſorts, floating in the water, or ſtuck in the rubbiſh; and do ſuppoſe, that ſince the misfortune at Liſbon, ſo dreadful an accident hath not happened to any town; nor could any thing more reſemble that than this, many of the ſtreets being entirely choaked up with rubbiſh, and the inhabitants obliged to come out at their upper windows, and ſome to break their way through the tops of the houſes. I fear many of the houſes will come down, ſome of which are officers quarters. I have had communications made through all the ſtreets, and mean to go on clearing away as faſt as poſſible."

Extract of a Letter from Gibraltar, Feb. 11.

"After returning God thanks that I am yet in the land of the living, I ſhall give you a conciſe account of the dreadful calamity the garriſon has been lately threatened with. On the 30th ult. at half paſt ſeven at night, came on a moſt dreadful ſtorm of hail, rain, thunder, and lightning, which continued near two hours; in which time it brought down ſuch immenſe quantities of ſtone and gravel from the hill, that was equal with the tiles of the houſes in the greateſt part of the town; many houſes tumbled down, and the inhabitants buried in their ruins; thoſe who endeavoured to eſcape, were carried away by the torrent; never was ſuch a dreadful ſcene ſeen in this part of the world; to hear the ſhrieks and cries of the diſtreſſed, and none able to give them relief, was moſt ſhocking; the ſnow or hail, all over the garriſon, was from ſeven to fourteen feet deep; the damage it has done cannot be yet aſcertained, though numbers periſhed; even of whole families none eſcaped.

"'Tis ſaid there are already to the amount of 160 perſons, that periſhed in their houſes, dug out of the ſnow. The works have ſuffered greatly, and the aqueduct is damaged; and it may ſuffice, when I tell you, that 18 and 24 pounders were waſhed out of the carriages at the Prince of Wales's lines, and the platforms ſet a floating: The trading people have ſuffered greatly; and had the hail, &c. continued one hour longer, the place muſt have been utterly ruined. By the confuſion we were in, in town, we did not perceive it, but the ſhips in the bay felt the ſhock of an earthquake, and imagined they were all aground, ſome of them having ſtruck on the new mole; and, by a flaſh of lightening, one ſhip loſt her foremaſt. There are upwards of 600 men clearing the ſtreets; but it will be a long time before it is effected."

March 7. The officers belonging to the victualling-office work extra hours, in getting ready ſtores and proviſions, to be ſent with all convenient ſpeed, to the relief of the garriſon and inhabitants of Gibraltar, who are in great diſtreſs, occaſioned by the late dreadful ſtorm.

Orders are given for a company of the royal regiment of artillery to be in readineſs to embark for Gibraltar.

Part of the ordnance ſtores preparing to be ſhipped for Gibraltar, we hear are intended to mount ſome additional works of ſtrength, to be conſtructed with all expedition, on the land ſide of that garriſon, towards the Spaniſh frontiers.

The diſpatches lately ſent off to governor Irwin, at Gibraltar, are now ſaid not ſo much to concern the events which may happen from any approaching rupture between Spain and Portugal, as they do the ſafety of that very important garriſon; and a watchful eye is kept to the moſt minute motions of their ſuſpected neighbours the Spaniards.

It is certain, that all the Spaniſh regiments in Old Spain are in motion, and that this fact is not even denied by certain great perſons here; but in excuſe they ſay, that this is the time when the Spaniſh government changes the garriſons of the fortified towns.

It is likewiſe certain, that the Spaniſh lines before Gibraltar are commanded by a Frenchman.

According to the lateſt advices from Cadiz, a conſiderable body of Spaniſh troops, drawn from the garriſons of Grenada, Murcia, and the neighbouring provinces, were ſaid to be poſted near Malaga, where they had formed a large encampment; it is added, that the garriſon of St. Roque, near Gibraltar, hath likewiſe been reinforced by ſome battalions of infantry from the province of Andaluſia.

The damages done by the late violent hurricane at Gibraltar, on the 30th of January laſt, are ſaid to amount to more than 140,000 l. ſterling.

March 14. We hear that orders are given to get ready a quantity of Portland ſtone, to be ſhipped this ſummer for Gibraltar, where it is ſaid no more wooden edifices would be ſuffered, as they were unable to withſtand the ſhock of the late ſtorm.

March 17. Thurſday a great number of tents, bricklayers, ſtone-maſons, and carpenters tools, were ſhipped in the river, on board the Neptune, for Gibraltar; as were the ſame day, on board the above veſſel, 623 firkins of butter, for the ſame place.

March 18. They write from Gibraltar, that it has been judged neceſſary by the officers of the garriſon, to erect as ſoon as poſſible, a very ſtrong wall or rampart round the lower extremity of the mountain, to prevent the ill conſequences apprehended from the waſt inundation of rubbiſh, which has continued to tumble down ever ſince the fatal 30th of January laſt.

The following Advertiſement appeared in the CAMBRIDGE CHRONICLE, in ENGLAND, the 31ſt of Auguſt, 1765.

CHARLES-TOWN, JULY 1.

FROM Pensacola, in West-Florida, we learn, that the Differences, which for some Years past, subsisted between the neighbouring Indian Nations of Creeks and Choctaws, have at last brought on an open Rupture; and Hostilities, in their Manner, are carried on with much Animosity. At the same Time, they both court the British Friendship.

The Cherokee Indians, who expressed great Satisfaction at the Boundary fixed between them and this Province, and being very impatient to have the Limits between them and the Provinces of North-Carolina and Virginia determined, applied, on that Head, to the Hon. [illegible] Esq; Superintendant of the Southern District, on whose Representation, we are informed the Government of North-Carolina appears very willing and desirous to have a Line run, to divide the Settlements of the Province from the Country reserved by his Majesty for the Hunting Grounds of those Indians.

A Sachem of the Tuskororas is arrived at Brunswick, in North Carolina, with Credentials from the Honourable Sir William Johnson, Baronet, Superintendant of the Northern District of America. His Errand is to solicit his Countrymen settled in North-Carolina to go and join the Rest of their Tribe incorporated with the Six Nations.

His Excellency William-Henry Lyttelton, Esq; Governor of Jamaica, having sailed from that Island for England, the Government thereof, for the present, is thereby devolved to the Honourable Roger Hope Elletson, Esq; lately appointed by his Majesty Lieutenant-Governor. His Excellency Governor Lyttelton, some Time before his Departure, issued Writs for calling a new Assembly.

His Majesty's Ships and Sloops of War, which have now been about the usual Period of three Years on the North-American Station, have received Orders to proceed to Great-Britain, and are to be relieved by a Fleet of 36 or 40 Sail.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Barbados to his Friend in this Town, dated May 31, 1766.

"I am sorry to inform you we had the Misfortune the 24th Instant, to have the better and most valuable Part of our Town consumed by Fire; some think the Loss more, but I think it will amount to One Million; at least 3-4ths of the Town is burnt, where the most principal Merchants dwelt, with all their Stores full of Provisions, and the Produce of the Island, &c. not being able to save any Thing of Value, for the Fire burnt with such Violence that all that, and the most principal Part it was of the Town, was in Ashes in a very few Hours.-----Upwards of 400 principal Houses were burnt, which with Stores, &c. exceeds 900."

Yesterday Afternoon arrived here, the Snow Richmond, Captain Hamilton, in ten Weeks from London; but brings no material Intelligence. In Captain Hamilton came, Mr. John Matthews, Mr. Peter Taylor, and sundry other Passengers.
